Foreword

Leo Clancy,
Chief Executive Officer, Enterprise Ireland

Our goal at Enterprise Ireland is to create economic opportunity for the people of Ireland. We do this by supporting the most innovative and forward-thinking Irish companies and entrepreneurs, enabling start-ups to thrive and influence the future of global business.

As we celebrate the 25th anniversary of the establishment of Enterprise Ireland, it is appropriate we reflect on the success of our talented, resilient and highly motivated business community. And the numbers speak for themselves.

Since 2005, we've supported over 1,560 High-Potential Start-Ups (HPSUs) across the medtech, fintech, food, manufacturing and consumer retail sectors, with 160 of these companies emerging from academic research.

Since 2012, we've also supported a total of 312 female-led businesses, a proportion that is increasing annually and that is core to our focus on equality, diversity and inclusion in our start-up community.

“Last year saw us invest over €22 million of direct equity in 91 HPSUs – with 13 of those enterprises emerging from academic research and 34 being female-led.”

This led to us being named Europe's most active domestic seed investor in terms of deal count by PitchBook, a leading investment platform.

We are mindful of the difficulties that the global economy continues to experience but we are confident that Ireland has a world-class business community capable of continuing to succeed. Our nation is a small and highly-connected one – that connectedness is evident here today and is a key strength that I believe Ireland will continue to benefit from.

This valuable annual showcase event is an ideal opportunity for collaboration between innovators and stakeholders drawn from across the country. There will be many networking opportunities, and the advice and mentoring on hand can further help all our ambitions to be realised.

We're proud of the part you've played in making the start-up ecosystem in Ireland so vibrant. I wish you the best in your business endeavours and thank you for your contribution to Enterprise Ireland's Start-Up Showcase 2023.
